

TRAVEL INSPIRATION • CULTURE

3 Hours In San Francisco

Written by Chaney Kwak • December 17, 2014

© Nikreates / Alamy

San Francisco's famous Painted Ladies, as seen from Alamo Square.

Set against roller-coaster-worthy hills and a glittering bay, San Francisco is California at its romantic best, combining the West Coast's natural abundance with cultural diversity. And in this fast-paced epicenter of the tech world, you can experience a whole lot in just three hours.

Michael O'Neal

Chefs Evan and Sarah Rich craft delicious farm-to-table fare at Rich Table.

EAT HERE

With its salvaged barnwood décor and hyperlocal ingredients, Rich Table embodies the northern California culinary scene's farm-to-table rabidity. Here you'll find ingenious dishes that the chefs brainstorm while hiking, like octopus confit with broccoli rabe, and sea scallops with smoked quince and fermented fish sauce.